

y-coordinate (pixels)

An Eye-Tracking Study of Adult Temperament Differences in College Students

Voluntary Consent: By signing this consent to joining you are not under any pressure to do so. You are under no professional or clinical obligation to participate in this study and you are free to withdraw at any time without any penalty or loss of benefits to which you are otherwise entitled. You may choose not to take part in the study, and you may choose to stop taking part at any time. There will be no penalty in any way if you decide not to be in the study or to stop taking part at any time. If you choose to stop taking part in the study, the information you have already provided will be used in our research unless you say otherwise.

Handy Abstract: The purpose of this research is to examine how long-term commitment impacts other facets of our personality, including liking and emotion regulation. We are attempting to determine if one factor, as we would say, "spreads" or "contaminates" the relationship between these factors only. Additionally, this research aims to determine whether relationships between these factors can be sustained across a variety of situations.

CLMCS

Source: U.S. Census Bureau.

0

1050

525

0

420

840

1260

1680